Foreign students happy to study at UniRazak

UNIVERSITI Tun Abdul Razak (UniRazak) Graduate School offers a unique learning experience to those wishing to expand their current knowledge and receive a boost in their career prospects.

Led by its dean, Professor Dr Cheah Kooi Guan, the Graduate School provides a variety of leading post-graduate programmes and a multicultural experience, due to the substantial number of international students.

Some of the post graduate programmes offered by UniRazak's Graduate School include Master of Information Technology, Master of Computer Science, various specialisations in Master of Education, Master of Science (Hospitality Management), Master of Science (IT) by Research, and Doctor of Philosophy (IT) by Research.

In the near future, the Graduate School will also offer a Master of Business Administration and Master of Management.

Intakes are three times annually — in January, May and September — with the next one on May 8.

Since its inception in 1998, UniRazak's Graduate School has admitted a large number of international students. In the university's 10th convocation (2010), 90 per cent of the students receiving their postgraduate degrees were international students.

Countries include Nigeria, Sudan, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Iran, Iraq, Uzbekistan and Libya, which had the largest number of students with 50. Imad Ahmed Al-Ghaith Shakhi, 28, from Iraq is pursuing his Master of Information Technology degree.

He chose UniRazak because the university is recognised in Iraq.

Imad said he was very pleased to be able to further his studies at the university, which has a wide variety of student facilities such as a student lounge, computer labs, wireless Internet connection, well-stocked library, cafe, hostels and public transportation.

The environment at UniRazak is very comfortable and quiet, which makes it conducive to studying.

The programmes are not only interesting but also of high quality with very professional instructors.

Onoja Akogwu Isaac, 32, of Nigeria, knew of UniRazak from his contacts — a lot of his friends talked to him about the interesting programmes being offered at a reasonable fee.

Onoja, who worked as a Networking Engineer in his home country and is currently pursuing his Master of Information Technology degree, said he was very happy with the level of communication between students and lecturers.

The good, vibrant relationships he enjoys with his lecturers allows him to ask questions and share problems he encounters in his studies.

Abdelaal Elshazali Osman, from Sudan, is 24 years and is also pursuing his Master of Information Technology degree after receiving information about the UniRazak's Graduate School from the Internet.

Holding a bachelor degree in Business Information Systems, he is very keen to study the IT field in greater depth.

In Sudan, there is great motivation to develop IT expertise in order to work in a reputable company and get a lucrative income.

Abdelaal is very proud to be a student at UniRazak's Graduate School. Not only are the facilities excellent but he also enjoys good relations with Graduate School staff, with whom he has maintained close contact since the first time he set foot into the Graduate School.
